

Boy does this not look like a real credit card???

This card was one of the two American Express Gift Cards that "Brent Docker" used to pay for our rental equipment. He called AmEx to get the card personalized to resemble an actual credit card. This card was purchased the same day as: 1) The PayPal account was opened with a credit card, without a bank. 2) The pickup day of the equipment for a one weekend rental. and 3) The creation of the Craigslist ad for one of the three cameras and one of the three stolen lenses.

NOTE: We suspect cards like these were used to open the PayPal account to create the rental fee of $900+ with no other connections.
